WASHINGTON, July 7.—Possibly prosecutions for perjury and obtaining money under false pretenses will be instituted in connection with the lobby investigation by the senate committee. Without prejudice the committee to day obtained waiver of immunity from Edward Lauterbach, the New York lawyer who has been prominently identified in the investigation with David Lamar, the Wall street operator who has confessed that he fraudulently David Lamar, the wall street operator who has confessed that he fraudulently used the names of prominent officials over the telephone in order to further the interests of Mr. Lauterbach. "I want this prompting stopped, and if it isn't stopped I will send you to jail. Let us have no more of it." Lamar Is Cynical.

Lamar smiled cynically, but Senator Nelson, one of the Republican mem-bers of the committee, interposed with an observation that he did not like browbeating methods.

"Neither is it fair to put this witness in a false position," he declared.
His nerves on raw edge, Lauterbach himself leaped from his seat.

"Those rights will be accorded to the witness," said Chairman Overman, rapping for order.

During Senator Reed's cross-examination Senator Stone arose behind the committee table, saying that he thought that a good time to ask some questions. Shaking his finger at Lauterbach, he demanded to know how it came that after Lauterbach and Ledyard had talked about Stone being the "inter-mediary" in one conversation, Lauter-bach suddenly became so cautious that he suggested in a subsequent conversa-tion the senator's name need not be mentioned. Lauterbach declared that Ledyard was mistaken in his account of the conversation, and that he had denied it was correct earlier in the day. "Why it was not read to you," interrupted

Lauterbach told the committee Lamar had excused his course "fairly satisfactorily" to him. He said Lamar had told him he acted as he did so that Ledward and the other conspirators against Lauterbach and himself might be publicly exposed.

The committee concluded Lauter-bach's examination at 11:50 o'clock and adjourned until 10:30 o'clock tomorrow morning.

COOPER, IN STUTZ CAR. WINS MONTAMARATHON

SEATTLE, Wash. July 7.—Repeating his winning race of Saturday, Earl Cooper won the Montamarathon road race trophy today when he drove his Stutz car over the 250.811-mile course in 3.32.01 1-5. Outside of Cooper's victory, the feature of the day was an exhibition mile driven by Bob Burman in his Bilizen Benz in 35 1-5 seconds, which is lower than the world's record for a dirt roadway. However, his time will not stand as an official record.

In the Montamarathon the Stutz car finished a lap and a half in the lead of Dave Lewis, whose Flat was a lap in front of Hughie Hughes's Red Tulsa. Harry Endicott, in his Endicott Special was flagged fourth. The average time of the winner was 59.30 miles per hour
